The Massacre in New Orleans.

The late tragedy in New Orleans, terrible as it was, will be of the most salutary effect. Thirty years ago slavery shot Lovejoy in Alton for defending the right of free speech. Year after year slavery insulted, threatened, and mobbed Northern men for preaching the Declaration of Independence. For five or six years past slavery has exiled, tortured, hung, and burned Southern men for fidelity to the Union. But the sure mills of God grind slowly on, and slavery is abolished.

We have entered upon a new era. Already men are shot by stealth in the late slave States because they declare justice to be the best policy. Already school-houses are burned and teachers hunted away because they seek to enlighten the minds which slavery had darkened. Already the New York World and the other Northern lackeys of slavery denounce Southern men who were true to the Union through fire and flood as "cravens and cowards." In Memphis hatred of the principles of equal rights before the law massacres the most friendless and unfortunate part of the population; and in New Orleans the advocates of the same principle, meeting to discuss the subject, are ferociously murdered. But still the slow mills of God grind on. The seed of equal rights will be watered, not drowned, by the blood of the sowers. It will surely grow into a harvest which no storm can destroy. It will bear its natural fruit of national prosperity; and in the happy day of its ripening those who sought to destroy the seed, whatever their station, whatever our temporary power, will be remembered only as the murderers of Lovejoy and the assassin of Lincoln are remembered.

It is of no importance whether the members of the Louisiana Convention of 1864 were wise or unwise, fanatical or moderate. Any body of men anywhere in the country, have the unquestionable right of assembling under any call whatever to consider public affairs. The desire of discussion is their authority. Any number of citizens of the State of New York may lawfully meet anywhere in the State to propose a new Constitution. One man alone may lawfully proclaim a new Constitution. There is no law against debate or against propositions of any kind, however sweeping or radical they may be. But when men proceed from debating to enforcing their propositions they become amenable to the law, and must answer for their overt acts. The Secession Conventions of 1860-61 were properly tolerated as the disunion arguments of the abolitionists had been previously properly tolerated. The Fenian meetings to found an Irish republic were perfectly lawful. But when the secessionists passed from declarations to deeds, and fired upon the forts, and seized the navy-yards, and stole custom-houses; and when the Fenians attempted with arms to make war upon a peaceful neighbor, the United States justly interfered.

The President knew, as everybody else knew, the inflamed condition of the city of New Orleans. He had read, as we had all read, the fiery speeches of both parties. He knew, unless he had chosen wilfully to ignore, the smothered hatred of the late rebels toward the Union men of every color. He may have considered the "Conservatives" wise, humane, and peaceful. He may have thought the Radicals wild and foolish. He knew that the Mayor was a bitter rebel, whom he had pardoned into office. He knew that the courts had denounced the Convention, and he was expressly informed that they meant to indict the members. He could not affect ignorance of the imminent danger of rioting and bloodshed. Still, if, as he constantly asserts, Louisiana is rightfully in the same relation to the Union that New York is, he had no authority to say a word or to do an act in that State except "on application of the Legislature, or of the Executive when the Legislature cannot be convened." Why did he presume, then, to judge of the authority of the Convention? What has the President of the United States to do with the manner in which delegates to a State Convention are selected? If his own assertion be correct as to the present relation of Louisiana to the Union, the President convicts himself of the most extraordinary and passionate act of executive usurpation and federal centralization recorded in our history.

If, however, he had any right whatever to interfere in the absence of a demand from the Legislature or the Governor, it was derived from the fact that Louisiana is held by the military power of the United States, in which case her present relation to the Union is not what the President declares it to be, and he has ample and absolute power to do in that State whatever is necessary to keep the peace. And he knew, as he knew his own existence, that a simple word to the military commander to preserve the peace at all hazards would prevent disorder and save lives. He did not speak that word. Assuming to plant himself upon the Constitution, which by his very act he violated, he telegraphed to the Attorney-General of the State. He threw his whole weight upon the side of those from whom he knew in the nature of things the disorder would proceed, and from whom it did proceed. He knew the city was tinder, and he threw in a spark. Every negro hater and every disloyal ruffian knew from the President's dispatch that the right of the citizens to assemble and declare their views would not be protected. The Mayor's proclamation was a covert but distinct invitation to riot. He announced to a city seething with passionate hatred of the Convention, that it would "receive no countenance from the President." It was simply saying, "The Convention is at your mercy."

And the mob so understood it. A procession of negroes carrying a United States flag was attacked. It defended itself; and the work which one word from the President would have stopped, and which he had the full authority to speak if he could speak at all, went on to its awful result. The rebel flag was again unfurled. The men who had bravely resisted it for four years were murdered under its encouragement, and while they were still lying warm in their blood the President telegraphed that they were "an unlawful assembly," and that "usurpation will not be tolerated"—words which he had no shadow of authority to utter except by the same right which empowered him to save all those lives; a right which he declined to exercise.

The President, who has undertaken by his own arbitrary will to settle every question of the war without consultation with the representatives of the people, says to the murdered men in New Orleans: "Why did you assume to act without obtaining the consent of the people?" The autumn elections will terribly echo that question. Surveying the Executive action of eighteen months, with its plain tendencies and apparent inspiration, seeing that it has left the President with no other party than the most vehement of the late rebels at the South, the Copperheads at the North, and the timid and trimming adherents of the Union party, while the great mass of sturdy Unionists in all parts of the country at the North and South still maintain the ground they have always held, those Union men will write upon the back of every ballot they cast at the coming elections, "Usurpation will not be tolerated;" and upon its face, "Why did you assume to act without obtaining the consent of the people?"—Harper's Weekly.

DEMOCRATIC LAMBS.—Here is some more of the doings of the rebel Democratic lambs of the South. We copy from the St. Louis Democrat:

In Kentucky, in the neighborhood of Lexington, immediately after the election had settled the question of rebel supremacy, six Union soldiers were taken out by rebels and whipped with hickory rods. Others were compelled to fly from the State at once to save their lives. The rebels openly boasted that they would make the State too hot to hold any Union man. Our informant, a General in the Union army, had remained in the State in spite of many threats until the election came off, but immediately afterward such a spirit was manifested by the rebels that he felt that it would be folly to remain any longer. He learned of the whipping of Union soldiers from reliable persons, with details of place and name. He believes that within two months the greater part of the State will be unsafe for any Union man, and that multitudes must leave the State to save their lives. In Louisville, before the election, the Courier stated that it should publish the names of merchants who voted the Union ticket, so that that they might be proscribed and ruined in business. In the greater part of the State this proscription has begun already, and a known Union man can engage in no kind of business with success, and is proscribed in society. It was only with fear and trembling that a man could own that he had worn the blue uniform in many places, and though the reign of terror which is threatened, and may be expected, has as yet begun only in some localities, Union men all over the State are preparing to emigrate to some more congenial lands.

A faithful picture of Kentucky under rebel rule—an example of the results of putting rebels into power—may serve to warn the people of Missouri. The events of the past two months have sufficiently shown that the spirit of the rebels here is not less vindictive and bloodthirsty than that which has appeared at Memphis, New Orleans and Kentucky. In portions of this State loyal men can be protected only by a State Government controlled by loyal men, while in other parts of the State a rebel victory in the coming election would lead to scenes of outrage and violence which would inevitably precipitate a civil war. Missouri does not want this bloody strife renewed. She longs for peace and order. And therefore we believe her people will sustain loyal men in control of the State Government by a majority large enough to warn all rebels of the folly of resorting to violence.

THE NAVAL ACTION AT LISSA.—The Patrie, under date of Vienna, July 22d, publishes the following account of the recent action between the Italian and Austrian squadrons in the Adriatic:

Admiral Tegthoff, the same who, on May 12, 1864, had to retire before the brave little squadron of the Danes in the action off Heligoland, was on board the armor-plated frigate, Archduke Maximilian, lying off the port of Pola, when a signal from a sloop which had been sent out to cruise, denoted some movement of importance. There were then under steam only two wooden ships of the line, the Kaiser, three-decker, and a two-decker and an iron-plated frigate. With this moderate force the Admiral put to sea, and was joined soon after by several armored gunboats. When in sight of Zara he received intelligence that the Italian fleet, comprising twenty-three vessels, most of them iron-plated, were about to attack Lissa.

Three other vessels, of which two had belonged to the fleet of the Austrian Lloyd's, but had recently been converted into vessels of war, and an armored corvette, joined the Admiral's squadron. This force, of which the three-decked Kaiser formed the center, took up its station at some distance from Lissa, the guns of which town had on the previous evening crippled the Italian armored frigate. Upon the squadron coming into sight the firing both on sea and land became appalling. Four Italian armored vessels, two frigates and two corvettes bore down under full steam upon the Austrian three-decker. The action became furious, the three-decker, enveloped in smoke, appeared like some monstrous animal standing at bay against a pack of hounds. Her gunners, nearly all Dalmatians, and who were now under fire for the first time, replied to the broadsides of their antagonists by a fire less rapid. The Admiral, seeing the danger in which that ship was placed, went to its aid, and directed his own vessel, at full speed upon one of the large Italian frigates. This frigate, already damaged at the water line, was stove in a little above the deck. A great cry was heard, a loud clamor, an immense gulf seemed to open amid the waves, and then wide-spreading circles were seen upon the surface of the water, which had again become smooth.

The frigate had been swallowed up. Its engulfment was, however, marked by a glorious episode. A half battalion of Bersaglieri who were on board climbed into the tops, and while holding on by the ropes, shouldered their rifles as on a parade ground, and sent a final volley upon the deck of the Archduke Maximilian. This parting farewell produced terrible effects—20 killed and 60 wounded falling around the Admiral, who seemed to be invulnerable.

Scarcely had this event been concluded when a fearful explosion was heard. A shower of iron and wooden fragments, mingled with portions of human bodies, fell upon the decks of the vessels, and an immense wall of water appeared to rise up near the Kaiser. The Austrian Admiral then found out that a hollow shot from one of the guns of the three-decker had caused the explosion of a second Italian frigate. Thus, two vessels were destroyed, two crews lost, besides other serious damages to the fleet. On board the Austrian ships the killed were numerous, among them being one of the most distinguished officers of the Austrian marine, the Irishman, Capt. Eric O'Klint (sic). Trieste has been illuminated; Spalatro, Zara and Ragusa, which have furnished the fleet with many of its combatants, have been decked out with flags. This battle will have a great moral effect, for it is no mystery that in all the towns just mentioned there exists a party which is seeking to promote annexation to Italy.

GENERAL BUTLER ON THE NEW ORLEANS RIOTS.—At a late social gathering in Boston, at which the two Massachusetts Senators, Senator Anthony of Rhode Island, General Butler and others were present, the General's opinion of the New Orleans riots was asked. He expressed the opinion that it was a preconcerted plan to drive the Union men from the State. He spoke of Mayor Monroe as a renegade son of Massachusetts who, after being imprisoned by him as a traitor, was about to be released upon taking the oath of allegiance, and had actually the pen in hand to affix his signature when word was brought in that McClellan had been defeated by the rebels with a loss of 40,000. Believing this canard, Monroe refused to sign, threw down his pen and was taken back to prison, from which he was afterward released by the action of the authorities at Washington. Gen. Butler spoke of the great wealth of the freedmen of New Orleans, estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, and of the consequent large interest they had in the future prosperity of the State. He expressed his apprehensions that if the cruel treatment of freedmen, not only at New Orleans, but at Charleston and other places, was continued, a war of reprisals would be the result. The downtrodden would, sooner or later, turn and sting those who continued to oppress them.

A strange decision has just been rendered in North Carolina. Chief Justice Ruffin has declared against the proposed new Constitution of the State and the late State Convention. The Chief Justice says:

"I consider that this is no Constitution, because your Convention was not a legitimate Convention, and had no power to make a constitution for us or to alter that which we had and have. I object to the organization of your Convention, because it was called without the consent of the people, by the President of the United States, or under his orders—an act of clear and despotic usurpation."

So "my policy" destroys itself. Johnson has so extinguished the rebels that they now defy him.

SOMETHING NEW!
THE NEW LIGHT!
DANFORD'S
Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT, IS A UNIversal necessity. A Safe, Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used without a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided; it is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps; it is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six foot Gas burner for less than ½ cent per hour, or double the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper-light, ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Shanahan & Dufrene, corner of Morrison and First streets.

The Daily Oregonian.

TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 11, 1866.

A Brave, true man Wanted.

The following is an extract from a letter written by Senator Williams, August 24, to a prominent Union man and a member of our State Senate. The italics are his:

Allow me to advise you in one respect: Send a man who is not afraid, and who will vote right. That is the main thing. All other matters are taint unsu and compared. A brave, true man in the Senate now is worth forty carbags. * * * * I believe the Union party in this country, notwithstanding the efforts to divide it, is invincible. I think the disgust with the Johnson-Copper arrangement is daily growing stronger and stronger.

The Amendment.

Somebody is writing tedious letters in the Oregon Statesman, arguing against the constitutional amendment and endeavoring to show the impolicy of adopting it. The main intent of his disquisition of last week was to show that the Constitution is too sacred an instrument to be altered, and that the proposed amendment ought therefore to be rejected. This writer lays out of consideration of the fact that the framers of the Constitution did not contend that it was perfect, that they therefore readily acquiesced in the amendments of 1789, 1794 and 1803, and that they—or four-fifths of them—including Washington and Franklin, would joyfully have accepted the late amendment abolishing slavery, had the opportunity offered. He forgets that thirteen amendments have already been added to the original instrument, and that ten of them were proposed and carried through by the authors of the Constitution. That instrument, then, is not too sacred and too perfect to be amended. If its framers could amend it for a slight reason, we certainly may for a very grave one.

... Faced About.

It was said of Pompey, by Rome's great philosophic historian, that he was "the subvertor of his own laws, as well as their author." If history does not say the same thing of the present Chief Magistrate of the United States, it will at least record how he frequently proclaimed doctrines which he afterwards rejected, and how he often announced his adherence to principles which he afterwards disavowed. This personage is now on an electioneering tour through the great States of the West, and at every opportunity (and opportunities are not rare) he upbraids and denounces the Congress of the United States for its inflexible devotion to principles of which he himself was an advocate no more than a year ago. Some of his adulators still claim that he is the author of every principle put forth in the Congressional plan of restoration; and that Congress has, after all its pains, done nothing more than follow where he had marked out the way. If this be the case, his own friends are proving him to be the subverter of principles of which he was the author. We know, certainly, that he is now vehement in his opposition to what Congress has proposed; it is not, therefore, very much to his praise to claim that he was once the great champion of these measures.

To concede that Andrew Johnson is the sole author of the four great propositions put forth in the Constitutional amendment now before the country, would be giving him credit for what does not exclusively belong to him; yet everybody knows there is not a single point contended for in that amendment, which has not, at one time or another, had his sanction. Only a short time ago it was the habit of public journals in the interest of his Administration to make ostentatious parade of the President's expressed desire that representation in Congress should be based on the voting population of the States. Congress was even censured for not proposing to the States an amendment establishing this principle of equal representation. Over and over again, it was showed by his own friends that the President was in favor of it. He was committed to it, certainly; but when Congress came to act upon the matter, the President, from his natural disposition to do contrary things, immediately took the opposite side. Of course his flatterers all applauded, and pointed to his action as proof of his independence and incorruptibility. Then began their warfare against the very measure which the President himself had suggested, or at least, had approved; and now Andrew Johnson is on a tour through the country, intemperately denouncing a proposition which only a little time ago had his fullest sanction.

His action in regard to the other features of the amendment is identical with his course in relation to this one proposition. He compelled the rebellious States to repudiate the Confederate debt by law; but does not want a proposition of this sort incorporated in the Constitution,—a necessary precaution, and one without which there is no positive security against the assumption of the rebel debt by the United States the moment Johnson succeeds in restoring traitors to power. He dictated a law last year which, in effect, he repudiates now. In other words he is, like Pompey, the subverter of laws of which he was the author.

COLORADO.—It will be remembered that Johnson's man Friday, otherwise known as J. R. Doolittle, got up in his master's Convention at Philadelphia on the 16th of last month and exultingly announced a great Administration victory in Colorado. The enthusiasm was immense. It turns out, however, that all this was premature. "Hunt, Administration candidate," is not elected; but Chilcott, "Radical Abolitionist" is, and by a majority of 127. Speaking of the manner in which Doolittle was sold, the Denver News says:

It is to be regretted that the announcement in the Philadelphia Convention of the election of A. C. Hunt, Copper-Johnson candidate for Congress, had to be made by Doolittle, the President, when it appropriately devolved upon the delegate from this Territory.

This departure from an established precedent we cannot believe intended any disrespect to the party in Colorado. It was the necessity of the case. The accredited Administration delegate to the Convention would have been there and made the announcement, but that the evening before he would have departed for Philadelphia he was unfortunately arrested with a bar of gold in his trunk he had stolen from the Holladay express office, and is now in jail in this city.

But for his unlucky detection the people of Colorado would have been fitly represented and the Convention much honored by his presence.

The larceny was probably committed for the purpose of obtaining the necessary traveling funds, and it is a pity that a patriotic desire to serve the President has thus brought him to grief. We think his case a proper subject for Executive pardon. It is probably his first offense, as he has heretofore borne a high reputation as a rebel bushwhacker in Missouri.

Perhaps, however, it is happier for him to be in jail than to be the subject of the "self" perpetrated on Doolittle.

Hunt is not elected, but Chilcott, the radical, is.

A Copperhead editor gravely argues that the Union members of the Legislature in voting for Senator, would be perfectly justified in selecting any man who supports the Presidents policy, and that they are not bound to insist on any other qualification. How happens it that they are bound to insist on this? The Union platform did not endorse "my policy." And if an endorsement of "my policy" were the only thing required in the man they vote for, Union men might as well support Kelly, Fay, Jo. Lane, or even "Col." John Lane, as anybody else. These all go for the President's "policy," and are the most earnest supporters he has in Oregon.

DISABLED.—A. D. Richardson, the well known correspondent of the New York Tribune, and author of the "Field, Dungeon and Escape," who lately visited Oregon, has been obliged to desist from any literary labor, owing to a disease of the eyes.

The Boston Transcript suggests that Andrew Johnson, like Andrew Jackson, had now better be styled the "Hero of New Orleans."

Dr. R. B. Webber, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of Washington Territory, died recently at Steilacoom.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Assembling of the Legislature.

Organization of the Senate.

House not yet Permanently Organized.

SALEM, Sept. 10.—The Senate organized this morning. T. R. Cornelius, President; John C. Peebles, Chief Clerk; A. L. Rockingham, Assistant Clerk; C. P. Church, Enrolling Clerk; A. F. Wheeler, Engrossing Clerk; P. C. Parker, Sergeant-at-Arms; Wiley Chapman, Doorkeeper.

The House failed to organize. Chenoweth was elected temporary Speaker. Excited session. The Democrats, including eight sworn in this forenoon, are all absent this afternoon. House elected James Gardner Sergeant-at-Arms pro tem. No quorum. House adjourned.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—To-day is the sixteenth anniversary of the admission of California into the Union. Aside from the celebration of the Pioneer Association the day does not appear to be generally observed, save by a universal display of the stars and stripes on all public and private buildings. The Pioneers, those who came here when California was a Territory, and have seen her grow from her infancy until she stands among the foremost of States in point of wealth, intelligence and political standing, always celebrate the day on which she was admitted into the Union. At 2 o'clock this afternoon they marched from their hall on Montgomery street headed by a band of music, to the Academy of Music on Pine street, where an oration was delivered by John W. Dwinelle. The house was filled to overflowing, and the orator was frequently interrupted by enthusiastic bursts of applause. This evening the Pioneers, with their invited guests, will sit down to a banquet at Congress Hall where toasts and speeches, wine and wit will conclude the day's celebration.

This being the Jewish New Year all the leading Hebrew houses of this city are closed, and business is therefore somewhat restricted.

Decisions have been made by the General Land Office affirming claims of Jno. B. Frisbie, Saml. Randall, Isaac Ruton, Chas. Mosely, Elw. Frisbie, Simpson Thompson, John Thomas, Thos. Evans, John J. Greenwood and Jno. Tormy to land on the Suscol Ranch, under act of Congress of March 3d, 1866. The Register and Receiver of the San Francisco land district, received official advice of the foregoing decisions. On Saturday, the Suscol Ranch decision, in which an appeal or rehearing was granted at the General Land Office on a question of fact, viz: Whether these claimants had made out their cases under the provisions of the act of Congress which allowed parties in actual possession at the time of the failure of the Vallejo grant, the privileges of pre-emptors and one year in which to perfect their claims as pre-emptors at the land office in this city. The decision noted above affirms that the parties have thus made good their claims, and this is virtually the end of the Suscol Ranch contest.

Damages to steamer Yosemite by the fire Saturday morning, proves on examination to have been more extensive than at first supposed. The fire not only damaged the beams and decks over the boiler, but the shells of letter above the water line were considerably injured by the intense heat.

Duncan B. Maynard commenced suit in the 12th District Court to-day to recover $50,000 damages from the Fireman's Fund Insurance Company for the publication of an alleged libel.

Owing to the illness of Elisha Cook, counsel for Charles P. Duane in the trial of the latter for the murder of Wm. G. Ross was suspended by Judge Pratt to-day until the second Monday in October. Judge Cowles ruled to-day that those who were members of the militia of this State prior to the passage of the new militia law are entitled to exemption from duty.

STATE ITEMS.

The State Journal learns that Hon. Ben. Morris, County Judge of Linn, died at Albany on the 7th inst. The vacancy will be filled by executive appointment.

A movement is on foot, and a call will probably be issued soon, for a soldiers' Union Convention for the State of Oregon.

Julian Ladrue, one of the convicts who got away from the Penitentiary at the time of the great escapade was recaptured last week, in the Cascade mountains and returned to his old quarters.

A letter from Salem says it is stated by those who claim to know, that the Copperhead hopes built on the possible defection of one or more Union men, are doomed to certain disappointment, and that every Union vote in the Legislature will be cast for a Union man for Senator, and for no other. The sentiment is universal that a Union man can, must and shall be elected without any delay or opportunity for thimble-rigging.

We learn that the "Third House" at Salem, consisting of candidates for all the offices, little and big, at the disposal of the Legislature, and the lobbyists for candidates, were present in large force. Sunday evening, outnumbering the total of both the other houses. There are certain to be very large delegations of disappointed candidates who will be ready to leave about the middle of the week.

A man named Ogden was killed at St. Louis, Marion county last Thursday night by a pistol shot from another man, (name not learned) during a game of cards. The party of whom there were several, got into a row and the murderer fired at some one else, the ball hitting Ogden in the head, killing him instantly. The murderer was arrested and examined but for some reason was acquitted. He was again arrested on Sunday and confined in the jail at Salem to await another examination.

The Supreme Court, with a full bench was in session during the last week, disposing of ten cases. There are twenty-five more on the docket which will probably keep the Court busy for two weeks. If disposed of in that time, the term will be a short one. Twenty-two attorneys have been admitted since the opening of the term. The names of applicants to practice admitted are: C. A. Dolph, James Chapman, James Guthrie, R. E. Bybee, of Portland; B Hartmann, Roseburg; P. L. Willis, S. C. Simpson, Salem; E. M. Engle, Belpassi; B. Whitten, T. H. Brents, Canyon City; T. B. Handly, Marion county.

The Grand Lodge I. O. of G. T. of Oregon and Washington Territory, held its second annual meeting in Salem, commencing on the 4th inst. and continued four days. It being the first great gathering of this body after its organization, the occasion was one of deep interest. The attendance was large, forty-two out of forty-six lodges being represented. The number of votes cast was 150. At the preliminary organization last October, the Order numbered 18 lodges. When the organization was perfected in May last, there were 30, now there are 46 lodges. There was quite a contest in the election of officers, particularly those of G. W. C. T. and G. W. S. especially the latter, as he is the business officer of the Grand Lodge. The reports of the officers and committees were generally very full and replete, and the Order was represented as in a very prosperous condition. W. H. Payne, G. W. C. T., and D. W. Pearson, G. W. S., were elected delegates to attend the California Grand Lodge at Sacramento, on the 26th inst. The Corvallis Gazette was made the organ of the Order in this jurisdiction. Rev. A. C. McDougall was appointed Grand Lecturer. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year and installed by A. C. McDougall, installing officer: W. H. Payne, Portland, G. W. C. T.; Wm. Kahler, Jacksonville, G. W. C.; Mrs. T. N. Reasoner, Brownsville, G. W. T. V.; D. C. Pearson, Salem, G. W. S.; Miss Fannie McFarland, Salem, G. W. T.; M. R. Pearson, Salem, G. W. A. S.; J. M. McClosky, Dalles City, G. W. M.; Miss Anna Lowrich, Centerville, G. W. D. M.; T. B. Handly, Lafayette, G. W. M.; Mrs. Lotta Brandall, Portland, G. W. I. G.; Thos. H. Storey, Mc-Minville, G. W. O. G.; L. L. Powell, Salem, G. W. C. The annual session will be held in Portland on the first Tuesday in Sept. 1867.

FROM IDAHO.

We take the following from the Idaho Statesman of the 4th inst:

MAN DROWNED.

Mr. George R. Driggs writes us from his camp on the Payette, August 27th, that four men came to his camp on the Saturday before, to obtain work. On Sunday one of the hands killed a bear on the opposite side of the river from camp, and two of the four men volunteered to help cross the game on a raft, in doing which the raft drifted down the river to a rapid and went to pieces. One of the men, named James Green, was drowned. Sunday evening and Monday were spent in trying to recover the body, but without success.

MAJOR MARSHALL HEARD FROM.

Mr. Wm. Yates arrived yesterday from Maj. Marshall's command, with which he has been for the last three weeks. He furnishes us the following items: The Major with his command has been scouting among the Goose Creek mountains, killed about thirty Indians, captured one horse and about two tons of grub. The command has now gone in the direction of Stein's Mountain.

BRUNEAU.

We understand that this celebrated swindle upon the Government is nipped. It had proceeded far enough, however, to cost the Government a good many thousands that might as well have have been thrown away. Orders came from the Department of Headquarters to suspend further operations at Bruneau on the grand scale inaugurated by Maj. Marshall. A messenger was dispatched at once, and the teams on the way ordered to halt, unload the lumber they were hauling over there, and to go on to Bruneau, load up with the property just taken over there and haul it back to Fort Boise.

NEW MINES ON GREEN RIVER.

The Statesman publishes the following extract from a letter dated "Salt Creek, I. T., Aug. 30," giving an account of a new discovery: Mr. P——: On the receipt of your letter at Helena, I was just ready to start prospecting on the waters of the Snake, in company with Webster and Frank Jones. We prospected on three of the main branches of the Snake, and did not find anything that would justify us to work. We then went on the west fork of Green river. We there found a valley or basin that we think will pay good wages. It is fine gold, and pays from the grass roots to the bed rock. We have located claims on the bars and in the small creeks, also have taken water ditches out of the main creek. I think it will be a very extensive mining district, and will probably pay from $4 to $15 per day. It is 40 miles north of Lander's road leading from the South Pass to Snake river, and 150 miles east of Taylor's bridge on the Snake.

"AN ACKNOWLEDGED INSTITUTION."—"Brown's Bronchial Troches," are among the acknowledged institutions of the land. What would our ministers, our lecturers, our lawyers, do without these invaluable Troches? To what an amount of "ahems" and coughs, and throat clearings, would we be all subjected, were it not for those all-powerful and soothing lozenges? We have tried them and they have done us good."—New York Waverly.

UPON THE HEALTH OF THE TEETH depends the purity of the Breath. Preserve them and mislead by the use of the famous Sozodont, that perfectly harmless vegetable preparation, and you will never regret it.

RAREST OF THE RARE.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 60 First Street, have shown us some of their ENAMELED PHOTOGRAPHIC CARD PICTURES which are strikingly beautiful. This is the only GALLERY where can be obtained a specimen of this patented improvement of the art. Other kind of Pictures, such as SUN-PEARLS, PEARL AMBROTYPES, PLAIN PHOTOGRAPHS, etc., furnished as usual.

THE LEGISLATURE, at the coming session will doubtless pass a UNANIMOUS JOINT RESOLUTION, endorsing the fact that KOHN & FISHEL at the ST. LOUIS STORE, No. 111 Front street, furnish the BEST STYLES and QUALITY OF CLOTHING, BOOTS & SHOES, at LOWER RATES, than can possibly be found at any other establishment of the kind in the State. They are CONSTANTLY RECEIVING INVOICES by every steamer DIRECTLY FROM THE EAST, so that their stock is always complete. It is to everybody's interest to call on them BEFORE PURCHASING ELSEWHERE.

If there is a person on this coast who wishes to purchase a reliable Sewing Machine that does not require repairs every three months, let them buy a Grover & Baker Elastic Stitch Sewing Machine.

The Graefenberg Company's Uterine CATHOLICON does not contain one particle of calomel or mercury, and cases of Female Complaints which require other treatment than the Catholicon are extremely rare. It should be used in all cases of Deranged Monthly Periods, Weakness, Irregular Appetite, Nervousness, Headache, Disturbed Sleep, Acid Stomach, Nausea, Indigestion and Pains and Difficulties connected with the Uterine Organs.

THE UTERINE CATHOLICON

Is a most successful remedy for Gravel and all affections of the Kidneys and Bladder, while in the troublesome symptoms attending Pregnancy, the benefits of the Catholicon are most remarkable. It is a perfect restorer of functional and general health from budding womanhood to the turn of life, and those patients who have used the GRAEFENBERG COMPANY'S UTERINE CATHOLICON find difficulty in expressing their thankfulness for the beneficial effects of this wonderful medicine.

HARRY JACKSON!

The Celebrated Clown and Mimic, who will appear as

Shakesperian Clown and Jester,

And give his wonderful Imitations, also impersonations of the DWARF FRENCH LADY, Trumpet Solos, etc.

The press has pronounced him a fellow of infinite jest and excellency. A hit; a palpable hit.

"Harry Jackson makes an excellent Clown, being witty without vulgarity, and clever in the general acceptance of the term."—Sac. Bee.

"A new feature in the entertainments, was the appearance of Harry Jackson, the Comedian, as Clown. We award Jackson the credit of being an unusually fresh jester, with a good stock of stories witticisms, apt quotations and practical jokes. His imitations of Baudman, Kean and Forrest were close and amusing, acknowledged by the public to be the most successful son of Momus since the days of the far-famed Wallet."—Sac. Union.

NAVIGATION ON THE WILLAMETTE.—Elsewhere we have given a short synopsis of a remarkable trip of a steamboat from St. Paul to Fort Benton and back. There is something in that voyage to remark about, but we claim that there is more to command admiration in this line nearer home. The steamboat men on those rivers can learn lessons from the same class of citizens in Oregon. The Missouri river can never be navigated successfully, until those companies interested shall build such boats as are now used on the shallow streams of our own State. In this we are not obliged to look to the East for knowledge, but want a few of our steamboat men—such as we could name—to go East for the purpose, we will wager a new hat that they would navigate the Missouri from the word go. We know that it is not to our interest to make any ... in this respect, but at the same time we have a pride in letting the outside world know that Oregon is not so supinely slow as people are apt to think. There is a steamer now making regular trips on the Willamette river which runs over bars that would seem almost incredible. Several amusing stories are told, at the expense of the People's Transportation Company, on account of this low water navigation. One passenger—of course he is reliable—says they crossed a certain shoal by throwing a stream through the steamer's hose, taking the water aft and depositing it forward of the prow. One other ... was that in which, as the story is related, the steamer came to a shallow place just at sun down, was tied up until the dew fell, and then proceeded on her course. These incidents are told in "hearty good humor," and should be taken with some grains of allowance, but they serve to show that the Echo continues to be heard about Salem and Albany not unfrequently—the low stage of water to the contrary, notwithstanding.

NAVIGATING THE MISSOURI.—Our St. Paul correspondent, under date of July 21st mentions the return of the steamer Favorite, Captain Hutchinson, which left St. Paul early last spring for St. Louis and Fort Benton. The trip in most respects was one of the greatest steamboat ... ever made on any western rivers. The Favorite is a steamer nearly as large as the Wilson G. Hunt, of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, and was for many years a favorite with St. Paul people, under the ... of Frank Steele. Capt. Hutchinson succeeded in getting her to a point higher up the Missouri on this ... trip than was ever reached before, besides ... less time to do it. He left St. Louis on April 1st, with forty-seven passengers and 160 tons of freight, and reached Fort Benton, 3,000 miles from his starting point, on June 12th, without a single mishap. He landed his passengers and freight at Fort Benton, and then pushed up stream, and reached a few miles when ... rapids arrested his further progress. The rates charged by the Favorite on the up trip were: For cabin ..., $200; for freight 22 cents per pound. At these rates boats make handsome profits, but it is a very risky ... as they more frequently lose than make. The river is very hard to navigate, and accidents very frequently happen. The great length of the voyage is another drawback, and a boat can only make one trip a season. The Favorite started from Fort Benton on the down trip on June 18th, made the run to St. Louis in seventeen days, and then left for St. Paul, arriving on the 18th of July, 33 days from Fort Benton.

ARE IRON SAFES SAFE?—The great fire at Portland, Me., has demonstrated that too much dependence should not be placed upon the perfect fire-proof qualities of any safe. It appears, from reports, that the safest safes were bank vaults, which, being built on the ground, proved to be entirely reliable, their contents being uninjured. The ordinary fire-proof safes manufactured in this country are made of wrought or chilled iron, space between the plating being left for the introduction of some good non-conducting ..., such as plaster, asbestos, chalk, alum, fire-clay, etc. The good character of a safe depends, of course, upon its ability to resist heat, and in this particular the safes made in this country are as good as can be had in the world but they are by no means perfect. It seems to us possible that inventive skill may yet succeed in producing a safe that will pass through the fiery ordeal, and deliver its contents unharmed. The subject is one that ought to receive a more careful study; our present advice is, that, so far as practicable, iron safes should be placed upon a solid foundation, and ... in ..., so as to prevent them from falling into the ... mass. Thus protected, the ordinary fire-proof safe is quite sure to preserve its contents.

We regret the failure greatly, as the firm was most enterprising, and ... an abundant return for their in... ... in the pursuits in which they were engaged.

NEW BRICK STORES.—We had supposed that the season ... for new buildings in our city, for the present year, in consideration of the great number that have been built, or are in process of erection, had passed. Such is not the case, however, it seems, as yesterday Mr. C. M. ONE FOR FORREST.—Negotiations are now pending to alter and improve Oro Fino Hall as to render it suitable for the purposes of a theatre. It seems now about definitely settled that Mr. Thomas Maguire will take the ... of a theatre in our city, and that Forrest will be one of the first to appear before a Portland audience the ... season.

MRS. WAITE'S LECTURES.—Mrs. Judge Waite, late of ..., will deliver a course of lectures to ladies in this city, beginning this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the basement of the Baptist Church. Mrs. W. has given much time to physical education during several years' experience as a teacher, and the subjects she will be enabled to present are well understood by her.

DR. DE CASTRO.—The physician whose name forms the above caption, and who is very well known on the Pacific coast, from his successful treatment of deaf and dumb ..., is at present stopping at Arrigoni's in this city, for a few days. If there are any persons afflicted, who would like to consult Dr. De Castro, they are invited to do so.

AT WORK.—The noble little steamer of Multnomah Engine Company No. 2, was yet on the wharf at the Gas Works last evening, where she had continued most of the day yesterday throwing water upon the still burning ruins of the late fire.

JEWISH NEW YEAR.—Business was suspended yesterday by nearly all of our Jewish citizens, who were enjoying the Holiday of their New Year. The festival will close this evening.

THANKS.—McCormick with his usual liberality has supplied us bountifully with late papers. John Stratman, 208 Washington street, San Francisco, served us in the same elegant manner.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns, rehearsals of the Philharmonic Society will soon again commence.

THANKS.—The Portland Gas Light Company in another column tender their thanks to the Fire Department for their arduous, continuous and successful efforts in saving their property from destruction on Saturday night and Sunday, and give notice to those who furnished the firemen refreshments to present their bills at the office of the company.

LAND SALE.—City Marshal Hoyt will to-day offer for sale, at the front door of the County Court House several parcels of land situate on Front street, delinquent for assessments levied to pay for the late street improvements.

S. T.—1860.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supersede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.
They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.
They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in Bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

S.T.—1860—X.

"Just so!"—"Exactly!"—Solon Shingle said: they were there "every time." If he felt "owley" in the morning, he took Plantation Bitters; if he felt weary at night, he took Plantation Bitters; if he lacked appetite, was weak, languid or mentally oppressed, he took Plantation Bitters: and they never failed to set him on his pins square and firm.

Barnes' Magnolia Water.
A toilet delight! The ladies' treasure and gentlemen's boon! The "sweetest thing" and largest quantity. Manufactured from the rich Southern Magnolia. Used for bathing the face and person, to render the skin soft and fresh, to prevent eruptions, to perfume clothing, &c.
It overcomes the unpleasant odor of perspiration.
It removes redness, tan, blotches, &c.
It cures nervous headache and allays inflammation.
It cools, softens and adds delicacy to the skin.
It yields a subdued and lasting perfume.
It cures musquito bites and stings of insects.
It contains no material injurious to the skin.
It is what every lady should have. Sold everywhere. Try the Magnolia Water once and you will use no other Cologne, Perfumery, or Toilet Water afterwards.

Mustang Liniment.
OVER A MILLION DOLLARS SAVED!
Gentlemen:—"I had a negro man worth $1,200 who took cold from a bad hurt in the leg, and was useless for over a year. I had used everything I could hear of without benefit, until I tried the Mexican Mustang Liniment. It soon effected a permanent cure."
J. L. DOWNING.
Montgomery, Ala., June 17, 1859.
"I take pleasure in recommending the Mexican Mustang Liniment as a valuable and indispensable article for Sprains, Sores, Scratches or Galls on Horses. Our men have used it for Burns, Bruises, Sores, Rheumatism, &c., and all say it acts like magic. J. W. HEWITT, Foreman American, Wells, Fargo's and Harnden's Express.
"The sprain of my daughter's ankle, occasioned while skating last winter, was entirely cured in one week, after she commenced using your celebrated Mustang Liniment.
Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 1, 1865. ED. SEELY."
It is an admitted fact that the Mexican Mustang Liniment performs more cures in shorter time, on man and beast, than any article ever discovered. Families, livery men and planters should always have it on hand. Quick and sure it certainly is. All genuine is wrapped in steel-plate engravings, bearing U. S. Stamp of DEMAS BARNES & Co. over the top.
An effort has been made to counterfeit it with a cheap stone-plate label. Look closely!

Lyon's Katharion.
It is a most delightful Hair Dressing.
It eradicates scurf and dandruff.
It keeps the head cool and clean.
It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy.
It prevents hair turning gray and falling off.
It restores hair upon prematurely bald heads.
This is just what Lyon's Katharion will do. It is pretty—it is cheap—durable. It is literally sold by the car-load, and yet its almost incredible demand is daily increasing, until there is hardly a country store that does not keep it, or a family that does not use it.
E. THOMAS LYON, Chemist, N. Y.

Lyon's Extract Ginger.
LYON'S EXTRACT OF PURE JAMAICA GINGER—for Indigestion, Nausea, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Cholera Morbus, Flatulency, &c., where a warming stimulant is required. Its careful preparation and entire purity make it a cheap and reliable article for culinary purposes. Sold everywhere at 60 cents per bottle. Ask for "LYON'S" PURE EXTRACT. Take no other.
CAUTION—See that the private U. S. Stamp of Demas Barnes & Co. is over cork of each bottle. None other is genuine.

Lyon's Flea Powder.
DEATH TO FLEAS.—It is well known that Lyon's genuine Magnetic Powder will perfectly destroy everything in the shape of fleas, ticks, bed bugs, roaches, &c.; that it is perfect poison to the insect tribe, but entirely harmless to the human species and domestic animals. The genuine has the signature of E. LYON, and the private stamp of DEMAS, BARNES & CO. Anything else of this kind is an imitation or counterfeit. Any druggist will procure the genuine if you insist you will have no other.

G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

STOP THAT COUGHING
SOME OF YOU CAN'T, AND WE PITY you. You have tried every remedy but the ONE destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try anything else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but
Pulmonary Syrup
is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefitted by the surprising curative powers of
Pulmonary Syrup
and with one accord give it their unqualified approbation. We now address ourselves to all who are unacquainted with this, the greatest Panacea of the age, for the healing of all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, assuring you that has cured thousands and it will cure YOU if you try it.
NEWELL'S
Pulmonary Syrup
This invaluable medicine is pleasant to the taste; soothing, healing and strengthening in its effects; entirely free from all poisonous or deleterious drugs, and perfectly harmless under all circumstances.

A Short-hand Writer

Of all the short hand writers in the precincts of Lincoln s Inn Cornelius Bubbstood the highest in matter of inches He was known in the Lane as the man in black—he had black clothes, black hair and black looks He was very sharp—his walk was sharp his tongue was sharp, and his pen was sharp The more business he got, the worse his temper grew, but it was all bark—there was no bite in it If he scolded a poor wandering short-hand clerk one night, he was none the less ready to give him a job the next, should he happen to call The most deadly of fense in his eye was correctness He could be spiteful to clerks who were clever enough to give no occasion for criticism He gave the preference over such to clerks who were human, and who erred These gave a nightly feast to irony and sarcasm, Disappoint him of his meal, be as short and immaculate in copying from your short-hand notes as himself, and you forfeit his friendship forever! You were a conceited fellow—an unpleasant companion from four P. M. to perhaps the small hours of the morning

On Tuesday night in November, when Michaelmass Term was a week old, Dr Bubb strode along from his modest dining place through the cold fog in the Lane toward his office He stepped quickly up the dark, unlighted staircase, and stopped into his room There were only some thirty or forty folios to write out and then he was free to use a ticket for the opera given him by a friend In the outer or clerks' office, was h s established clerk—a boy of ten years who lived in the regions below with his mother There was also a stranger waiting—a young man with a note-book in his hand

"Nothing to night," said Bubb, who could not yet afford to pay others for doing what he could do himself

The stranger turned to go

"If you please, Sir," said the boy, "Hume and Smollet have sent round to say they want the evidence in Jones and Perkins by nine o'clock to morrow"

"What!" cried the disappointed play goer.

The boy repeated his message

"Why there s three hundred folios of it, and I've told everybody I shouldn't want them Run down the Lane, and if you don't find some of them never show your useless face here again Run!" The boy disappeared on his errand.

"And now," said Bubb, turning to the stranger who had lingered, "you are in for it There's three hundred folios to do before you leave this office"

"Very well, Sir"

This philosophic reply caused Bubb to scrutinize the stranger more narrowly He was dressed in an Iverness cape, he held his round hat respectfully in one hand, and a brand new reporters's note-book in the other. He looked very young, his voice was not broken, his cheeks were smooth, and free, as yet from whiskers; his dark hair was short and curly, his black eyes had a merry look in them, in fine, he was a very good looking boy

"I have never seen you before," remarked Bubb "Where did you learn short-hand?"

"At home, Sir"

"Have you ever done such work as mine before"

"No, Sir."

"Good gracious! Then perhaps you can't do it? I am sure you can't. You don't look as if you could. And what's to become of me? Do you know what three hundred folios mean?"

"No, Sir"

"I thought not," said Bubb contemptuously "Well, then, I'll tell you it's more than twelve hours' hard work. And what will become of me? If that boy doesn't find some help, I'll hang him."

"It is true, Sir, that I have never done this work before," persisted the short hand voice, "but you can't tell whether I can do it or not till I have tried"

"An Irishman said something like that when he was asked if he could play the violin," remarked Bubb severely

Here his boy-clerk returned. "I can see nothing but the fog Sir, if you please."

Under the pressure of business his master deigned no reply but a look—"What is your name?" he demanded of his would be assistant

"John Smith, Sir"

"A very remarkable one. Sit down opposite me there and tell me if I read too fast" He opened the note book in which he had taken down the evidence in Jones versus Perkins, and began to read aloud John Smith wrote it down in his own short-hand in the note-book he had brought with him, beginning the questions at the extreme left, and the answers in the middle of the page He had nearly filled a couple of slips, when Bubb stopped suddenly and watched how far he was behind. Only four or five words.

"Read!" said Bubb.

John Smith read it unhesitatingly. Bubb tried hard not to feel pleased, but failed

"Write it out on this paper. Begin six lines from the bottom—I will put the heading in after ward—and mind, put 'Q's' and 'A's' in the margin"

Without a word, he did as directed, and that in a swift, clear handwriting

"Don't leave blanks," said Bubb, "and don't puzzle over a word you cant make out at once, ask me"

But Smith had nothing to ask.

"You'll do," remarked Bubb, pithily A bright thought struck him "You can't expect, Mr Smith, the same pay as an experienced hand Twopence per folio is what such a man gets, and we reckon about eight folios in a sheet of evidence I'll give you three half pence; will that do?"

"Yes, Sir," replied Smith humbly So at their work they went—Bubb dictating about fifty folios at a time to Smith, with directions to fit it in on the right side of a sheet, and then copying out himself the continuation from his own note-book They worked on thus without interruption, save a cup of tea and a hastily swallowed crust, till between three and four the next morning, when all the evidence was written fairly out.

"Come as soon after three o'clock this after noon as you can," said Bubb, as he parted with his new assistant at the door of the office; "I have a case in Kindersley's Court" Bubb re turned to read, page, and stitch in a neat cover his many sheets of manuscript, Then he made himself a bed on the couch in his own office, and slept soundly till 8 o'clock, when his boy clerk came up from the kitchen with his breakfast

That night the offices of Mr Bubb presented a noisy and busy scene The outer one was crowded with assistants, who smoked and wrote and talked and sent out the boy for beer, which they passed to each other under the table—who were constantly asking questions, and making mistakes, and occasionally swearing, sotto voce. The door of Mr Bubb's private office was ajar, and from thence his snarl and sneer came to them in rapid sequence All the evening they had been taking turns to be dictated to at Mr Bubb's desk, and the wrangling between him and his slow dictates—his erring favorites—was ever seen in the ears of all The law stationer's boy had worried Bubb into a state of fury But he never became confused, his clear head revelled in the general distraction Not so his new assistant, John Smith he had asked leave early in the evening to work in Mr Bubb s room

"As you like—on the stairs, if you please, so long as you get it done," said his master.

It was eleven o'clock, Bubb had given out the last of his notes and the law stationer s boy was snoring in a corner ready to to be shaken up for the last sheets Near them was seated young Smith straining hard to keep his eyes open, and forcing sore, reluctant fingers to finish his task An assistant brought in the last of his work, and then made a speedy exit, But his master s tongue f llowel him Running his eye malic ously over the sheets, Bubb cried out "I say, Dix n do you mean to say you did this y ur self?"

Yes sir, responded the assistant from the outer room

"I can t believe you, Dixon" replied Mr Bubb there are only sixteen words mis spelt" A loud laugh from his comrades At this moment the new assistant gave in—his hand dropped help lessly on the desk Bubb jumped up and raised him gently and was about to unfasten his neck tie and waistcoat when with an exclamation of dismay he drew back as if he had burnt his fingers Smith opened his eyes and revived wearily

I thought you had fallen asleep, Mr Smith," sa l Bubb in strangely tender tones "Have you much to do"

"No Sir"

"Then come here I want you" Dixon entered the sanctum "Here's our new friend very tired perh ps you lon t mind seeing him home He has nearly f ni hed

Smith was t fatigued to object, if he had any obje tions indeed he had to lean very heavily on the arm of the good-natured Dixon

Come to morrow with your bill" said Bubb as they left The fresh air will revive you You will take care of the boy, Dixon"

In the outer office among the seasoned old sters the boy excited much sympathy Ignoring in their kindness the eye of Bubb they openly offered him the pewter pots to drink from Smith faintly thanked them and declined

On Saturday evening Smith presented his first account to Mr Bubb in that gentleman's office He paid it at once cutting off an odd n nepence for luck as he said Bubb always contrived to pay first acc unts when due it made people's minds easier under any delays that might take place with other accounts Smith was retiring with his well earned money when Bubb clearing his throat detained him with these words Mr Smith, I have nothing to do with your private affairs you do what I pay you to do still—still I think you ought to give me a reference"

Smith blushed like a girl and stammered out, "I can give you a note to Dr P , of Bloomsbury he knows me"

Mr Smith eagerly assented "How will he word it thought he His curiosity was pictured so plainly in his face, that Smith, with a smile politely handed it to him to read 'Dr P is earnestly begged to say a word of recommendation in favor of his young friends, the Smiths Bubb felt disappointed. He took some interest in this cheap and able short hand writer, and the clever vagueness of the note still kept him in the dark He watched Smith from the office window till he was out of sight, and then started for Dr P s The doctor was very busy could spare Mr Bubb only two minutes

Seeking work from you sir I presume? Well, the Smiths are highly respectable and trustworthy poor from misfortune Take my guarantee for any materials however costly you may trust them with, whatever your business may be "Good morning sir"

"Excuse me, I am a cautious man" said Mr Bubb, what misfortune?"

The father—wealthy man—turned his son out of doors The daughter left with him and will not return till he is forgiven The son is consumptive—won t live long Good morning, sir You have my guarantee

On his way back the sharp tongued, short-hand writer composed a beautiful romance, with him self for the hero, and his assistant for heroine The plot run thus The discarded son of a wealthy father is ill and Mr Bubb finds employment for his faithful sister at a reduction only of a half penny a folio She is grateful, she is also not insensible to his personal charms—she loves him The discarded and consumptive son dies. The wealthy father calls back his daughter to his penitent bosom, and at the expiration of the fashionable term for mourning, Mr Bubb marries his late charming assistant, now heiress at-law to her father's wealth

For the remaining weeks of the term, however other assistants fared, there was always something for young Smith For him Mr Bubb suspended his economical habit he sat idle himself, rather than turn young Smith away But business changed to be very brisk, this was very seldom the case Dixon always accompanied Smith home, waiting for his younger comrade if it were necessary Mr Bubb had always to read over and correct when his assistants were done But he was not jealous of a man who was only five feet four, and made mistakes in spelling, besides the fellow did not know Smith's secret, and was luckily too stupid to find it out. Meanwhile, Mr Bubb set about displaying himself in the eyes of John Smith as an unparalled short hand writer, as a magnanimous man As luck would have it he had a heavy case nearly every day and the usual lot of cheap incapables to help him out. These he made a good foil for his own sharpness, and he did not spare them in that capacity. He dictated from his notes twice as fast as he had had to write himself, and when the slow short-hand writer timidly asked for a word three sentences back from where he was reading, he would turn toward Smith for sympathy, and assume the air of a contemptuous martyr He did not bully his men as much as of wont, nor did he so frequently make them copy their work over on account of a blot or an erasure His voice, too, lost much of its acrimonious tone, toward Smith, indeed, it was sickly sweet In an easy chair, with nothing to do, young Smith might have had leisure to admire his master towering morally as well as physically above his subordinates, but bending all the night over ill written short-hand characters, and puzzling over the mysteries of "fitting in," he noted little of the change which was a common topic among his fellows They, you may be sure, did not fail to take advantage of the Governor's unaccountable softness They smoked more, wrangled more, and had more beer in They turned saucy to him

"I can't make this word out," remarked Mr Bubb, coming to a sudden stop in his dictation, "it is strange I can't make it out, for it is written so plainly—so very plain"

"Then" said his assistant, "don't write it so plain next time"

But Mr Bubb bore all for the sake of the future—for the sake of the third volume of his romance. However, the cloud over the hot sun of his temper passed suddenly away, and his unhappy assistants were scorched again worse than ever. This was on the last day of Michaelmas Term On that night, for the first time, Smith did not appear at his accustomed desk It was a busy night, and his other assistants, so far as erring went, were more human than ever Bubb missed the quiet, accurate and ready pen of Smith He was also tormented by other feelings These were confirmed when on the next day, Saturday Smith did not present his weekly bill as usual He had lost him forever Would his grand romance turn out an illusion, after all the fine opportunities of temper he had given up!

That evening he had called again on his reference, Dr P—— He was as busy as ever, and it was not till Bubb had waited half an hour that he popped his head into the room where Bubb was pacing about impatiently, and said, "Oh, it is you Well, a reconciliation has been effected Wants no more work Good morning, sir"

Bubb caught him in the passage as he was stepping back to his surgery "Will you give me the address? There is money due, sir"

"Ah," said the Doctor, "honest man Send the money here, and I will forward it"

"And a letter?"

"Yes, anything Good evening"

Bubb went back to his office revolving a love letter in his mind "If," thought he, "her short hand had been the same as mine, what a lot I could have said"

The letter was very characteristic It ran thus "MY DEAR MISS SMITH —I send you one pound eighteen and eightpence-half penny per favor of Dr P——, for which please forward receipt. Why should you be afraid of letting me know your address? You were not afraid of working beside me night after night in an illegal disguise Was I ever harsh to you? Did I ever make you write a single sheet over again? Did I ever find fault with your spelling or punctuation? Did I not allow you to estimate the number of folios yourself, and did I ever cut you down, as I do the other fellows? Did I not always read slowly to you, not that you require it for you are a beautiful short-hand writer as well as a beautiful woman"

"That's capitally turned," said Bubb to him self, proudly I wonder what her Christian name is? She called herself John Smith—perhaps its Jane" He wrote on

"My darling Jane I love you I think I can even now see your ready, pretty little fingers taking down the words from my lips Let me see you in the dress proper to you in which I am sure, my dearest Jane, you must be irresistible Once your kind master, now your kind lover

CORNELIUS BUBB

P S —Don't forget to send receipt."

But no answer came to this moving epistle and the cruel silence brought Bubb to such a despond ing state, and probably the advent of Hilary Term alone saved his life Indeed so disgusted was he with human life that on Christmas day he made his landlady, notwithstanding her many prostestations provide a plate of cold boiled beef for dinner Hilary Term brought healthful work his gang of incompetents, and the exhilarating use of his bitter tongue

One night he was in one of his customary fixes out of which, somehow he always contrived to get without loss of professional reputation He had received unexpected orders to write out some old notes by the next day and he had nobody to help him For reasons of his own he would trust solely to wandering clerks One of them came in —It was Dixon He had not seen him since Smith s disappearance

"Good evening Mr Bubb you owe me fifteen and six" said Dixon flinging down his bill

Certainly my dear boy why did you not bring it before and Mr Bubb pulled a handful of silver out of his pocket and paid the claim without even a grumble He felt as a sergeant may feel slipping the shilling into the hand of a recruit You are in luck my boy to night he said to Dixon there are two hundred folios to get through

"Are there?" said Dixon dryly, as he receipted his bill

"Yes, come, look sharp, and get to your desk"

"I am going to the theater, Mr Bubb, with a friend," replied Dixon, with a grin

Bubb tried hard, but he could not speak—it was a kind of gasp

Dixon went on "The fact is I have come into—that is I am now independent of short hand"

Then what did you want with my fifty shillings?" asked Bubb, who felt himself robbed under false pretenses

"Here my lad," said Dixon to the boy—"here is five shillings for you This got of it in fifi ence confirmed Dixon s story He must have fallen into some good thing"

I wish I had that young Smith here said Bubb regretfully for he was again in a fix

I can tell you," said Dixon what has become of him He has been sent by his father to Paris to study medicine—at least so his sister told me"

"What! you know his sister?" asked Bubb eagerly

"Yes The fact is, I am—I am engaged to be married to her"

To her that used to come here"

"What the devil do you mean by that, Mr Bubb" demanded Dixon in rather fierce tones

Bubb rose and twisted his chair between them so that Dixon might not be tempted to do any foolishness He temporized "I mean to say Dixon, how did you become acquainted with the family"

Oh I don t mind telling you that Although my father was a poor barrister and died before he got much practice, I have a few friends and it was at the house of one of these that I met the sister of the young gentleman who used to come here when he was under a cloud She was so like her brother I was accustomed to walk home with, that I was confounded at first, and I suspected—that is she told me they were twins and that accounted for the resemblance She is now waiting for me to take her to Drury Lane Good by, Mr Bubb

From that day no short hand writer without a beard durst present himself at Bubb s office and those with beards deplored their ill luck in having to go

Dr Gibbon s Dispensary,

617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL San Francisco Established in 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases such as Gonorrhea Gleet Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms Seminal Weakness, Impotency etc Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgence, or from diseases absorbed into the system Look at their pallid, sunken and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians friends attend to those who are suffering from any of these horrible life-destroying maladies they are cared for and cured before it be too late, and send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs It is important to all who are afflicted or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing that they can in curing all diseases in a few days imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians of Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions the consequence of self-abuse, solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noises like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confusion of ideas, blunted intellect, loss of confidence diffidence in approaching strangers a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes; pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease which never failed of effecting a quick and radical cure Dr G will forfeit One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by any other of the San Francisco quacks

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give each patient a written instrument, binding him to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity to any part of the country with full directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in a registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co
